David B. Henderson, American, Came from Good Fighting Stock

Gave Early Evidence of His Ability to Look Out for Himself-His First War Speech in an Iowa University-Election to Speakership Seemed to Change His Whole Character.

Draugus, Iowa, Saturday.—A Scotchman chorus. Here by birth, an American by choice, the late dross of alloy. David Bremner Henderson, of this city, played a conspicuous and honorable part in tmerican affairs. All but the first ten of his sixty-five years were devoted almost entirely to the wellbeing of his adopted country. As lawyer, soldier, politician and finally as speaker of the House of Reprehe constructive measures of war and oite affairs is marked with stirring incients which illustrate the dominant traits

Colonel Henderson sprang from some of the fighting stock of Scotland. Before emigrating to America the family dwelt in the illage of Old Deer, on the Earl of Bu-han's estate in Aberdeenshire. The ability on him favor with the old Earl, who, one lowing an especially good dinner, declared the singer and his descendants for three use of a generous slice of land on the of main street of the village. The elder Henlerson immediately erected six cottages in the land and the rent from five of them ade him a man of distinguished consider tion in the village.
